10 BANG vs BUCK

Professor Keith Hayward FRAeS digs deep into the archives to investigate why only two of the five crew members of the RAF's V-bombers were provided with ejection-seats — an issue of practicality or cost?

22 V FOR VINDICTIVE

One of the Royal Navy's first aircraft carriers, HMS Vindictive saw action in the Baltic in 1919 and went on to become a pioneer of aircraft catapult operations. Aidan Dodson tells the full story of this oft-forgotten pioneer

34 LÉON-ARSÈNE BRISSARD

Jean-Christophe Carbonel's Ces Hommes Magnifiques series on early French aviation makes a return with Léon-Arsène Brissard's ducted-fan contraption of 1914

40 GET SMART!

Continuing our series on British aerial weapons, master illustrator Ian Bott joins forces with Chris Gibson to describe the development and operation of the American-designed but British-built Paveway laser-guided bomb

52 WINGS OVER PERU: THE CURTISS HAWK BIPLANE

Amaru Tincopa's occasional series on the history of Peruvian military aviation focuses this time on the Curtiss Hawk biplane in Cuerpo de Aviación del Perú service

62 AMERICA'S WHIRLYBIRD AIRLINES Pt 1

Renowned American airline historian David H. Stringer opens a new two-part series on the genesis and development of the USA's commercial rotary-wing operators

72 GREAT EXPECTATIONS

Using recently discovered documents and illustrations, Tony Buttler AMRAeS explores Australia's ambitious Commonwealth CA-23 post-war indigenous jet fighter project and the UK Ministry of Supply's evaluation of it

84 METAMORPHOSIS: FROM AEROVAN TO SKYVAN

In the first half of a two-part article, former Shorts Flight Engineer Graham Skillen charts the transition from Miles's post-war Aerovan to its 1960s progeny, the Shorts Skyvan

96 THE BRITISH ARMY & THE JUMPING JEEP

Project Prodigal called for an all-terrain vehicle capable of sustained flight for the British Army. Chris Gibson takes a look at the ambitious proposals of Handley Page and BAC

106 PRIZE PIPISTRELLO!

Andrew Thomas and Giovanni Massimello relate how an Italian bomber raid on an RAF base in Aden in June 1940 led to the first wartime capture of an Italian aircraft

112 PUSHING THE ENVELOPE

Having acquired a set of flight-test reports written by the pilots of the Royal Aircraft Establishment's Aero Flight, we open a new series in association with the Farnborough Air Sciences Trust, in which we present the reports verbatim. We begin with the carrier trials of the Supermarine Type 510
